Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia, which are linked in a military alliance, have already offered to replace the subsidy of some $22,000,000 which Britain pays Jordan for support of the Arab Legion.

Registered — Senator George Calls Actions (FORCES IN BEING) Improper but Not Il-

WASHINGTON, March 6 SOUTHEAST ASIA (AP)-Counsel to the Senate committee investigating lawyer lobbyist John M. Neff's activities in behalf of the natural gas bill said today there were a couple of points of possible law violations he wants to put before the Senators.

Charles Steadman, Cleveland lawyer, who heads the commit-tee staff, described them as matters the committee should consider in writing its report even though a federal grand jury is making its own inquiry jury is making its own inquiry.

One of them is whether there was any violation of law because of Neff's failure to register under the lobbying act. Another is the question of whether the Superior Oil Co. of California may not have violated the law by paying the expenses of Neff out of company funds when he made a trip to South Dakota to offer a $2500 contribution for the campaign of Senator Francis Case (Rep), South Dakota.

Steadman said all the evi-

The Kearney report, a study of non-teaching operations of the school system, was completed in 1954 by A. T. Kearney & Co., a Chicago business consultant firm. It asserted that substantial savings could be made through more efficient operations.

Saving of $152,000.

In finance and accounting, the report contended that $152,000 could be saved annually through elimination of 49 jobs. It proposed reorganization of procedures, to prevent duplication of record-keeping, and wider use of business machines.

The committee did not take up the Kearney proposals individually, but said that the board's executive officers agreed that "certain areas of accounting and fiscal control need to be explored with a view toward centralization and simplification."

H. Lee Bruns, committee chairman, said one simplified procedure was adopted last year, cutting the number of steps involved in processing payroll warrants.

THRILL-A-MINUTE CLUB

Here's the why of it:

There's so much excitement at the wheel of a '56 Buick, we had to do something to accommodate all the folks who want to get in on it.

So we set up a little Club to handle matters and it's for fun and for free.

All you do to join is drive a new Buick - that makes you a member. And all you do to drive this beauty is ask.

From that point on it's pure thrill all the way. Because then you'll feel the sheer bliss of cradled travel in the best riding Buick yet built - and of a wonderful handling ease in the car with the truest sense of direction yet ...

Because then you'll tingle with the flash-fast power response that's yours from Buick's big 322-cubic-inch V8 engine-where horsepowers and compression ratios hit lofty new peaks, and road command hits a soaring new level ...

Because then-and only then-will you feel the absolute smoothness and the electrifying action of today's new Variable Pitch Dynaflow*. where the first inch of pedal travel does new wonders for getaway and cruising and gas mileage-and where flooring the pedal switches the pitch for the most spectacular safety-surge in America today.

So if you want some fun and fast action - if you want to see what it's like to call signals on the most performance-packed automobile in all Buick history - come join our Thrill-A-Minute

As we said, there's nothing else to do for membership except drive a new Buick. And, as we'll gladly show you, there's nothing to match this beauty as a bedrock buy-for we're making the best deals ever on the best Buick yet.

Drop in on us today or tomorrow - press that pedal - and let the thrills fall where they will.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

DIES OF INJURIES FROM AUTO ACCIDENT NEAR ST. CHARLES

Delmar E. Fearing of Xenia, Ill., died today at St. Joseph Hospital in St. Charles of internal injuries suffered last Friday when the automobile he was driving overturned on United States By-pass 40 just west of St. Charles.

Fearing was 72 years old. A passenger in the car, Miss Evelyn Kuntz, 54; suffered a shoulder injury. She lives at 1563 Wellston avenue, Wellston. The State Highway Patrol said Fearing apparently lost control of his machine.

The death was the fifth fatality on St. Charles county highways in 1956. In the comparable period of last year no deaths had occurred, the state patrol said.

Draw up a chair. Let's assume your bills are paid. And you have provided for family emergencies. Now you're ready for an interesting journey.

To where you want to get: Ahead. Begin by considering investing in good common stock. The idea is not to try to make a killing-but to get a good return on your money.

Stocks? You've got the wrong man, pal. I'm not rich. Neither are most stockholders. Three out of four people who own stock have incomes under $10,000 a year. Many Neither are most stockholders. Three out of four people under $5,000. They own their share of American business. Because when you own stock you're part owner of the company and you share in its profits by way of dividends. If it grows your investment can grow too.

Now you're getting somewhere. But how do I make sure the company will pay those dividends?

You can't. Sometimes a company doesn't make a profit from which to pay a dividend. Fact is, though, around 500 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange have paid dividends every year for 20 to more than 100 years.

You: So I ought to buy stock only with my eyes wide open? Now you're getting somewhere. Bear in mind that a stock can go down as well as up. Start by getting facts and sensible advice. You'll find both if you drop in on a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. They'll welcome your visit and help you get information about both stocks and bonds.

Haven't you got anything for me to read?

We sure have. An interesting little booklet called "Investment Facts about Common Stocks and Cash Dividends." Gives dividend records of several hundred companies, tells you how to open an account, and describes the wonderfully convenient Monthly Investment Plan, which enables you to buy stock in some of America's greatest companies for as little as $40 every three months.

Where can I get that booklet?

Easy. Drop in on, or telephone, or mail a card to any Member Firm. Or send the coupon direct to Dept. 6E, New York Stock Exchange, Box 252, New York 5, N. Y.

ALDERMEN OPPOSE PLAN

FOR PARK CONCESSIONS Opposition to a proposed contract for exclusive operation of concessions at 10 locations in four city parks was expressed yesterday by the aldermanic committee on parks and recreation in a letter to Frank J. McDevitt, president of the Board of Public Service.

The committee said such a contract, bids on which are scheduled to be opened today tended to favor large out-of-town concessionaires and was adverse to smaller operators in St. Louis. The four parks involved are Forest Park, Fairgrounds, Carondelet and Fox. A delay in action on the contract until a study is made was requested by the aldermanic committee. A bill was introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday to limit concession contracts for parks to one year instead of five.

senate aviation subcommittee yesterday. An aircraft on the ground measures only tens of feet in breadth and length. In the air it often needs space in miles wide and 50 or more miles bing for safety's sake.

That's mostly because the air traffic control system is outmoded. It causes flight delays and cancellations. An entirely new a traffic control system would cut down on this extraoragant use of airspace.

It would take time and a lot of money to develop the new system. In the meantime, the airlines say, the present system ought to be improved before the traffic jam upstairs gets worse.

This in brief, was the airlines' story to the subcommittee, a unit of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, the chairman, was impressed. He thinks civil aviation has too long been the "stepchild" of Government.

Vernon I. Weibe, an electronics engineer, explained how the present traffic control system works. Reliance is still heavily placed on voice telephone and voice radio. Voice radio is a party line system where one must listen to all calls to be sure he will recognize those intended for him.

Pertinent facts on each flight—position, alititude, speed, direction, and so forth—are relayed by the pilot's voice to the ground controller, possibly Karsten Says Refusal to Refinance Houses Handicaps Owners Trying to Sell.

By a Washington Corresponde of the Post-Dispatch.

of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, March 6—
Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, charged today that a new policy adopted by the St. Louis office of the Federal Housing Administration was lowering property values in the vicinity of Lambert-St. Louis Field.

the vicinity of Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Karsten asked FHA Commissioner Norman P. Mason to investigate the alleged practice under which, he said, some persons who bought homes in the vicinity of the airport with FHA-approved loans now find their homes ineligible for FHA refinancing "solely because of their proximity to the airport."

As a result, Karsten explained, home owners, most of them veterans, who now desire to sell their houses, are told that the prospective purchaser will not be eligible for an FHA-approved loan because the houses are near the flying field. This, Karsten said, "is discouraging new construction and is practically halting the sale of all property in the vicinity be-ministration. ministration."

"The majority of these home owners are veterans," he continued. "They can ill afford to have their property values downgraded. Many of them have their life savings invested in the ways."

have their life savings invested in these homes."

Karsten told the Post-Dispatch he doubted whether the FHA was morally justified in withholding loan approvals on homes which, a few years ago, were granted FHA financing, FHA Official's Comment.

Alan T. Smith, director of the FHA office in St. Louis, said his office several years ago resurveyed the airport area in view of expanded military and jet plane testing opera-

This resulted in extending "This resulted in extending the FHA area in the vicinity of the airport where we did not wish to insure loans for homes." he said. "The exten-sion included just those areas near approaches and take-off lanes."

Smith said FHA's new policy Smith said FHA's new policy for property near the airport has been in effect about two years. He added that there may be 100 houses in the extended area, but many of these would not have FHA loans in the first place! He acknowledged that his estimate of the number of houses in the extended area "is only a guess."

his estimate of the number of houses in the extended area "is only a guess."

Would Take New Look.

If military and jet testing operations are moved from the airport, as has been suggested, Smith said, FHA will have to take a new look at its area for loan purposes.

A group of 75 FHA field directors at a meeting here last month concluded that airport activities, crashes and military operations around airports had a "very small" effect on the values of adjoining property.

Smith said FHA surveys around Lambert-St. Louis Field showed that some residents were "ready to move tomorrow," while others reported "they liked their homes and had gotten used to airport noises."

An important announcement from Kellogg's of Battle Creek

By W. H. Vanderploeg President, Kellogg Company

BEFORE our founder, W. K. Kellogg, died in 1951, he had a great concept about a new cereal. He believed that valuable properties of other foods could be combined with those of the grains in such a way as to produce a concentrated high-quality protein food in a delicious new cereal form.

It has been my privilege to carry this idea forward.

For the past four years, we at Kellogg's have been working hand in hand with two of our great universities on this project.

Out of it has come an achievement that is perhaps the greatest in our history.

This new cereal food is an unusual combination of nourishing grains and other natural foods including milk and yeast.

It's a ready-to-eat cereal remarkably rich in high-quality protein—about twice as much as the average, and more protein than in any other well-known cereal, hot or cold.

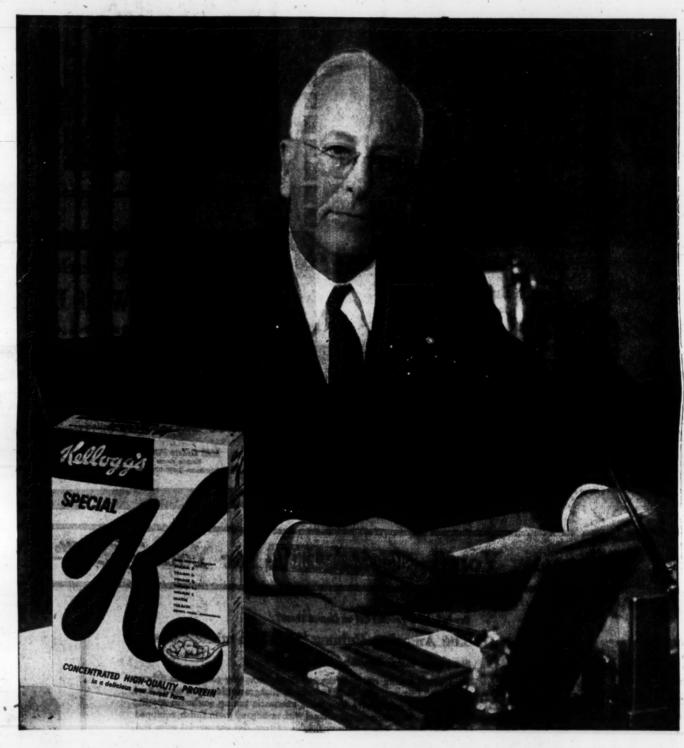

It has a combination of vitamins specified for us by the nutrition departments of the universities who worked with us as being most needed by most people.

Yet the surprising thing is that with all its health-giving properties—this is probably the most enjoyable cereal anyone has ever put into his mouth. It's not quite a puff, not quite a flake, but I can assure you, it's unusually tempting to eat.

You may be interested in knowing what happened when we sent this new high-protein cereal out in a plain package to several thousand people whose opinions are rather important to us—people just like you.

To begin with, 4 out of 5 started off by saying how much they liked its taste.

One physician said: "This is not just a new cereal-it's a new protein food."

A food editor told us: "It's amazing that a cereal with so much solid nourishment could be so light and tasty."

We're calling the new cereal our Special K because we feel the big red "K" in our trade mark is more or less our coat of arms.

Special K is on hand now at most grocer's. We want you to try it for its unusual flavor and excellent health benefits. We particularly address this invitation to people who haven't been eating cereals too frequently.

We feel sure you'll enjoy Special K, for breakfast and any time of day you want something wholesome and good tasting.

The subcommittee, a branch of the Senate Armed Services Committee, will "cover the missies field" thoroughly to get "the whole story of guided and ballistic missiles," Symington told reporters.

Also slated for investigation is the rate of production of B-52 long-range bombers, he said.

Quarles to Co-operate.

Symington, a former Secretary of the Air Force, said Donald A. Goal of the investigation, he said, will be "to get all the truth out to the people, every bit of it that won't help a potential enemy."

Hearings will begin probably by the end of this month or early in April, Symington said. He pledged a "nonpartisan" investigation.

He pledged a "nonpartisan" investigation.

Insofar as possible, subcommittee sessions will be open to the public, but because of the nature of the testimony some hearings may be held behind closed doors. Testimony in some closed hearings may be made public after being screened for security.

The present inquiry stems in part from Symington's charges that the Government is building its Air Force too slowly, when compared with Russia's rapid progress.

when compared with Russia's rapid progress.

Ahead of Russia.

Symington and Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, a member of the subcommittee, also have questioned whether the United States is ahead of Russia in development of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The missiles controversy was sharpened recently by the resignation of Trevor Gardner as Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for research and development.

Gardner quit with a charge that the United States was lagging behind Russia in this field, because of Administration cutbacks in spending for mis-sile research and development. It had been expected that Timmerman would name Thurmond, who has announced he will seek nomination in the June 12 Democratic primary.

Two years ago Senator Burnet Maybank (Dem.). South Carolina, was nominated for another six-year term but died before the elegtion. Thurmond won a full six-year term on the write-in campaign. His resignation Saturday was in keeping with a 1954 campaign pledge in his write-in vote campaign against State Senator Edgar A. Brown, who was nominated by the state Democratic executive committee without resort to a primary. Thurmond promised to step down this year to seek primary nomination.

Timmerman said he was au PTITUDE or Merr-Women who want train as "It is obvious that the hot breath of passionate desire to build power reactors has simmered down to a cool zephyr," said Benjamin Sigal, general counsel of the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical Workers.

Although a half-dozen power reactors have been projected with partial or complete private financing, construction has not begun on any of them, Sigal said. The only full-scale reactor now under construction near Pittsburgh is largely financed by the Atomic Energy Commission, with the Duquesne Light Co. providing the steam-generating equipment.
"We have no assurance that any of the projected private projects will, in fact, be built," Sigal said. "None of these is finally committed. None of them has a permit to proceed with construction."

Sigal said his union, strongly

An educator today challenged the notion that small-sized college classes are the best.

Alvin C. Eurich, director of the Advancement of Education, proposed instead a "cluster" theory of running a college. "Clusters of people and clusters of objectives," he told the Eleventh National Conference on Higher Education. What he meant was that college programs can be streamlined and that the various jobs necessary to teaching can be rearranged. The result, Eurich said, would permit the greatest of teachers to reach large numbers of students while more students coulld study without any teachers at all.

The problem arises, Eurich said, because of the shortage of teachers that grows as the number of college students grows.

If colleges try to keep the present student-teacher ratio, Eurich said, the caliber of the teachers will drop.

Eurich said research showed that the idea of small classes traces back to an ancient third-century Jewish Talmudic rule.

He said it was no longer necessary to have such a rule with modern means of communication, telegraphy, photography, motion pictures, television and sound equipment being what they are. they are

Crisis in Jordan Brought About British Loss of By 3 Pressures; Future of U.S. Role in Jordan Directly Involved in Outcome

Increasing Nationalism in Mideast, Use of American Money to Buy Off King Hussein and New Soviet Offensive Have Upset Established Order.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

THE VAST MAJORITY of Americans must be a bit bewildered by the headlines announcing a crisis in Jordan. A local king, it seems, has summarily dismissed a peculiar British character with the peculiar appellation of Glubb Pasha from command of the local army.

command of the local army.

"But why the devil should I care?" one sensible citizen rather peevishly asked these reporters. "I don't even know where Jordan is."

Yet American interests and even the American future are both rather directly involved in this ugly little crisis in a small and remote nation of the Middle East. So it is well to try to be clear about what has really happened, and then to examine what it really may mean.

3 Pressures at Work.

What has really happened, in brief, is that three relatively novel pressures have utterly upset the established order in Jordan. The first of these pressures, and probably the most important, is generally familiar. It is the increasing nationalism that makes it increasingly intolerable, for all the ex-colonial peoples, to have westerners in key positions in their countries.

Because of this new nationalism, which one sees all over Asia, Gen. Glubb's position at the head of the Jordanian army yes already an anachronism might have leaded a let longer if the sure leaded a let longer if the supposition of the longer if the longer if the longer if the proper into the British tried to bring Jordan into the tried to bring Jordan into the British tried to bring Jordan into the Baghdad pact, the Communists led the riots that defeated the British intends parket the Communists led the riots that defeated the British intends parket the Communists led the riots that defeated the British intends parket, the Communists led the riots that defeated the British intends parket the Communists led the riots that defeated the British attempt. This Communist influence has no doubt softened up King Hussein, so that the is willing to do business with his family's Saudi Arabian and naminist agents disguised as Arab nationalists also have fareaching influence at the court of King Saud of Saudi Arabian valuations and the saudi Arabian surface and the count of the saudi Arabia. But after reviewing all these pressures on Jordan, you may still saw where we come into this and the saudi parket p that makes it increasingly intolerable, for all the ex-colonial peoples, to have westerners in landward the Saudi Arabian ruler to anticipate his royalties for an incompositions in their countries. Because of this new nationalism, which one sees all over Asia, Gen. Glubb's position at the head of the Jordanian army was already an anachronism. Yet the anachronism might have lasted a lot longer if it had not been for the two other pressures.

The second pressure was no really a pressure, in our sense of the word, as much as it was a temptation. The Saudi Arabian pressure, in our sense of the word, as much as it was a temptation. The Saudi Arabian have used a substantial share of their oil royalties to subsidize the politicians and the press in neighboring countries. These subsidies have had a great effect in Jordan, which is both small and poor.

In Jordan, moreover, the government itself has long been subsidized by the British. The whole bill for the Arab Legion, the force that Glubb headed until last Thursday, was formerly paid by the British taxpayers. Saudi Arabian the graph and the exact of the Saudi Arabia and Egypt—really paid by the British taxpayers.

Saudi Arabians have used a substantial share of their oil royalties to subsidize the politicians and the press in neighboring countries. These subsidies have had a great effect in Jordan, which is both small and poor.

In Jordan, moreover, the government itself has long been subsidized by the British and European partners.

In short the future of America, because of the urgency of the western Europe and Britain, in truth, is the oil source of the word and the pression of Gen. Glubb.

Because of the urities of the Prench and British embassies at the State Department late today to study the new situation.

This will be the third of the Prime Minister Eden met here at the politic of the Prime Minister. Cent and the left and the pressure of the little Arab Legion.

In a strain and the ex-coult of the little Arab she cash to specific and the pressure of the litt the bill that Britain has always paid. King Husseln of Jordan's abrupt dismissal of Glubb means that his government has trans-ferred from the British to the Saudi Arabian payroll.

New Soviet Offensive.

As for the third pressure involved, it is simply the new Soviet political offensive in the Middle East. On the one hand, the Communist infiltration of the masses in Jordan is much Meeting Today.

The United States officials, headed by William Rountree, deputy assistant secretary for Middle East affairs, will meet with officials of the French and British embassies at the State Department late today to study the new situation.

This will be the third formal meeting of the three powers since President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Eden met here at the beginning of February and called for three-power consultations on means of preventing or halting war in the Middle East.

DUBIOUS CHEMICAL—Few housewives know it, but a dubious chemical that comes from petroleum is still used as a "freshener" in rolls, cookies and other bakery products although its use in bread has been barred. Called polyoxyethelene monostearate, its use in bread was fought successfully by the Food and Drug Administration three years ago.

It is still used to freshen other bakery products because of complicated legal procedures that hamper the Food and Drug Administration.

Congressmen, certain food manufacturers, and Food and Drug Administration products are trying to plug the loophole in the law by requiring Government approval before chemicals can be added to food products. They point out that in the last fifteen years, approximately 25,000 such chemicals have been discarded as unsafe. Of the 400 now in use, it is estimated that 150 have never received adequate testing. Polyoxyethelene monostearate is one example. It is just one Congressman. Till murder case in Mississippi.

Text of Eisenhower's Letter To Bulganin on Disarmament

WASHINGTON, March 6 (UP).

The text of President Eisenhower's March 1 letter to Soviet

In accordance with my message to you of October 11th, I to Control Armed regarding the objective of an acceptable system of disarmament which we discussed at Geneva.

I am confident that the adoption of my Geneva proposal combined with ground inspection teams which you proposed, thus reducing the danger of surprise attack, will in fact lead to a reduction of armaments, the lessening of tensions, and the brightening of the prospects of a durable peace,

Certainly the United States is fully resolved to achieve those ends. My representative on the subcommittee of the United Nations Disarmament Commission will be prepared to help develop a program to carry out that resolve, through appropriate action by our gov-ernments.

appropriate action by our governments.

In my judgment, our efforts must be directed especially to bringing under control the nuclear threat. As an important step for this purpose and assuming the satisfactory operation of our air and ground inspection system, the United States would be prepared to work out, with other nations, suitable and safeguarded arrangements so that future production of fissionable materials anywhere in the world terials anywhere in the world would no longer be used to increase the stockpiles of exincrease the stockpiles of ex-plosive weapons. With this could be combined my pro-posal of December 8, 1953, "to begin now and continue to make joint contributions," from existing stockpiles of normal uranium and fission-able materials to an interna-tional atomic agency. These measures, if carried out ade-quately, would reverse the stant increase in nuclear wea-pons overhanging the world. My ultimate hope is that all production of fissionable ma-terial anywhere in the world will be devoted exclusively to peaceful purposes.

I am mindful of the difficulties in this regard, pointed out in your government's proposals in your government's proposals ties in this regard, pointed out in your government's proposals of May 10, 1955, arising from the possibilities for evading international control and organizing the clandestine manufacture of atomic and hydrogen weapons. The risks inherent in failing to achieve control, however, make it imperative to overcome the difficulties involved and to devise and implement an effective system of safeguards. With genuine efforts on both sides, I feel confident we can succeed in this endeavor.

Limitations on Arms.

In general, my feeling is that disarmament should be sought primarily, though not exclusively, in terms of limitations on armaments rather than on men. The former are more subject to supervision, regulation and control than the latter. In the present state of international affairs and especially in the absence of real peace in the Far East. I foresee that it may be difficult to agree on reductions in the general level of armed forces at this time.

It should, however, be possi-forces at this time.

It should, however, be possible now to agree to measures having a stabilizing effect, dealing with the control and limitation, under proper safeguards, of major types of armaments. These measures will be an essential part of the comprehensive system required to provide security to participating states. If the United States and U.S. S.R. and our associates on the subcommittee — the United Kingdom, France and Canada—can reach a basic agreement, I am confident that other nation would want to join in what they would regard as a favorable de velopment for world peace.

With the agreement of other nations concerned, the United States would expect the agreed system of supervision to apply, in an appropriate and effective

This means a total of at least 8000 classrooms to be built by 1962, and costing under present standards at least $20,000 per room, or a total amount of $160,000,000 for public school buildings.

How can we meet this need? It eannot be met by the local districts assuming most of the entire cost, as is now the case. It can only be met by the state adopting a state-wide school-housing program in which the state would assume a larger share of the cost.

Obscuring an Advance

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The maltreatment of Miss Autherine Lucy at the University of Alabama manifestly was obscene. But one swallow does not make a sumer, and one propaganda bonfire burned by the N.A.A.C.P. should not obscure the fact that more than 2000 Negroes have been integrated into Divise colleges without any flarence. #### Across Six States

The oil lobby has now been tracked across six

IOWA: Oil lobbyist John M. Neff now admits he offered a campaign contribution for Senator Hickenlooper if the Iowa Republican was in favor of the recent natural gas bill. Neff admitted this after Wendell T. Edson, an Iowa lawyer, told the committee Neff had offered $2500 without the Senator's knowledge Earlier the Republican national committee for Iowa, Robert K. Goodwin, had said Neff made him two offers of cash for the Hickencoper campaign chest, but Neff said flatly that Goodwin "was wrong."

NEBRASKA: Joseph Wishart, treasurer of the G.O.P.'s state central committee, testified that Neff last October counted out 26 $100 bills and gave him 25 of them as a contribution for the Republican party. Neft had already testified that he had tried to "ascertain" the position of Nebraska's two Republican Senators, Hruska and Curtis. Neff had solicited their votes in person

WYOMING: Paul J. Gerdes of Lexington Neff's law partner, told the Senators that Neff had visited Wyoming last fall. Gerdes said he "rather assumed" the visit was in connection with Neff's efforts to promote passage of the MONTANA: Gerdes also said Neff made a trip to Montana in October and "believes" Neff reported that he did not see anyone who could advise him of the attitude on the gas bill of Senators Murray and Mansfield, both Democrats.

WISCONSIN: The committee supporting Senator McCarthy for re-election received a $2000 contribution from "N. B. Keck," in 1952, its statement filed with the Secretary of State showed. Senator McCarthy said he did not know whether the Superior Oil Co. president contributed to his re-election campaign but that if he did, "I'm glad." If the contribution was made, it was for his "antl-Communist fight" and "long before" the gas bill was being considered, McCarthy said. Senator and Mrs. McCarthy were flown around the country in a private airplane registered to Superior Oil Co. in 1953.

SOUTH DAKOTA: This, of course, is where the trail of Neff's lobbying activities began. Senator Case, Republican, told the entire Senate that an oil lobbyist had offered $2500 in cash for his campaign. The revelation led to President Eisenhower's vete of the gas bill, and compelled the Senate investigation. The inquiry in turn disclosed that the money offered Senator Case came from Keck funds, through lobbyist Neff.

The record does not show that each of these was influenced by oil money or even knew of John Neff's activities. But the record does show that except for Senator Case, every one of the Senators mentioned in these six states did vote for the oil lobby's bill. The list includes Senators McCarthy, Hickenlooper, Hruska, Curtis, Murray and Mansfield, and also Wyoming's Senator Barrett, Republican, and O'Mahoney, Democrat.

To put the results of the lobby inquiry in perspective, it must be observed that the trail involved for the most part just one oil lobbyist working for one oil company operator. Yet it led to six big Western states and toward nine important Senators. The very limitations of the George committee inquiry and of its results suggest that the Senate has traced only part of the big oil lobby's promotion of its natural gas bill. The trail is now left to the general lobby investigation to be conducted by the new bipartisan eight-man Senate committee.

This special new committee has not even o ganized for action as yet. It ought to get to work before the trail grows cold.

Be Polite to Chickens

Chickens appreclate politeness. Our feeling is that this makes it practically unanimauthority for the way fowls feel about it is a poultry expert at Michigan State University. He says poultry-raisers should knock or call out before entering the pens. They should cultivate a good nest-side manner. Their first thought should be to induce their hens at all costs to remain calm.

The hens will respond to this respect for their finer feelings, says the expert, by laying more eggs. This is a way of expressing gratitude that is both tangible and practical. Though it is unhappily beyond the grasp of human beings, yet the latter, too, appreciate politeness, in about the same forms as hens do, and respond to it their own peculiar ways.

In the interest of greater therefore, let us all resolve to knock more often before entering, to be as friendly and reassuring as a family doctor, and to become noted for our calm.

Without Hobbles

The Upper Colorado development bill will, we hope, come out of the joint Senate House conference without amendment which would impair the usefulness of the project. Several proposed amendments of a highly political and nonutilitarian character were rejected by the House, but one questionable amendment was

This amendment would forbid the growing of any crop which is in surplus supply nationally on any of the newly-irrigated land for the first 10 years. It would arbitrarily discriminate against one group of irrigation projects and one part of the country. It could lead to red-tape hobbles not now foreseeable.

The question of irrigation and crop surpluses is one which calls for a far less off-hand treat-ment than this amendment provides. The Upper Colorado project is a meritorious one, as President Eisenhawer declared in his most recent press conference. Let's not weight it down with limitations on its effectiveness.

To Mitigate 'Security' Injustices

In commenting on the bureaucratic thoughtlessness which marks so many of these proceedings, John Raeburn Green, St. Louis attorney, concludes that there is no substitute for the due process of law. By disregarding this he says the system has become vastly expensive to the taxpayer. If it is to be retained at all, it should be changed at least for the sake of efficiency.

The miscarriages of the system, of course have brought forth many protests. Green has gone beyond mere protest to suggest 12 carefully considered reforms to make these proceedings less objectionable. They are summarized elsewhere on this page because the problem is not one merely for administrators but for all citizens concerned for the spirit of the American Constitution—and their pocket-

Role of the Junior College

By 1970, so Dr. Benjamin Fine writes in The New York Times, the colleges and universities of the United States can expect a total enroll-ment of 5,000,000. That is 2,000,000 more than they have now. Thus in less than 14 years the college enrollment will be almost twice what it is today. This will be one of the notable con-sequences of the postwar population boom that is now swamping elementary schools.

How will the colleges and universities meet this demand for an education of nearly twice as many students? Will they double their facilities? Will they undergo the change in character that this would entail in many instances? subdivide? Will they establish new units?

These questions are the subject of much study and no little concern nowadays among educators. One of the possible contributory solutions lies in the junior college field. The Belleville Junior College celebrates its tenth anniversary Wednes-day with a public dinner and meeting at which the speaker will be Dr. David Dodds Henry, new president of the University of Illinois. This provides a fitting occasion to review the growth of the junior college movement in Missouri and

There are now 19 of these junior or (twoyear) colleges in Missouri-eight publicly con-trolled and supported through local or district school authorities, and 11 privately controlled. The eight which are tax supported and their enrollments and years of founding are as

In Illinois the celebrating Belleville Junior College, of which Dr. Hal O. Hall is superintendent, is only one of several that have been established in the postwar decade. Danville, Elgin and Moline school authorities have set up junior colleges since the end of World War II. Mount Vernon has voted to establish one beginning next September. Centralia has had its junior college since 1940 and the latest directory shows its enrollment as 329. The enrollment at Belle-

Other Illinois tax-supported junior colleges are in Chicago (three all begun in 1934 with a total enrollment of 17,000), Joliet, LaSalle, Cicero, Harvey and LaGrange. The movement is spreading rapidly in Florida and California, the latter state alone having 30 public year colleges.

The case for the junior college is largely in terms of economy and convenience. Classes are held, in many cases at night, often in existing high school buildings. This keeps down cost and puts facilities in easy reach of many students.

If junior colleges measure up to the standards of the first two years at first-rate colleges and universities they can be of great assistance in handling the rising tide of students. The test must be in the qualifications of their faculties and the level of the education that they provide

The winds have been but gently stirring zephyrs, drying out the masses of last year's dead leaves. Predictions of clouds and showers are mildly disturbing only to those ladies of fashion who, kept from Florida this winter, have been getting an early start on their tan. Otherwise they only promise moisture to help the warmth in bring-

Nine Justices, Eleven Words

The motion to affirm is granted and the judgment is affirmed.

With these 11 words the United States Supreme Court has extended its racial desegregaon ruling from publicly-supported elementary and high schools to public colleges and universities. The case is one involving the University of North Carolina which enrolled three Negro students last fall after a three-judge federal district court ordered the admission.

The surprising thing about this case is not the Supreme Court decision for any other decision would have gone back on a long line of unanimous rulings extending into the chief justiceships of the late Fred M. Vinson and Harlan F. Stone.

What is surprising is the stand of the University of North Carolina in opposing the anti-segregation decision as "inconsistent" with the preme Court's own decisions upholding so-called separate but equal" facilities as meeting constitutional requirements.

This is hardly the University of North Carolina of old which so often was am educational leader. Here the university at Chapel Hill lags behind universities in Kentucky, Texas, Oklahoma, among Southern states.

Perhaps Vice President Nixon will note that the decision in this case is per curiam. That means no one Justice wrote the opinion but all nine Justices in effect prepared the order. We trust the Vice President will spare Chief Justice Warren the embarrassment of trying to twist this decision into a one-man achievement in line with Mr. Nixon's recent immersion of the Supreme Court in partisan polities.

Twelve suggestions made by St. Louis lawyer for greater efficiency and economy and some compassion for victims of federal accusations; all are possible under present law; would mitigate evils but are no substitute for citizens' constitutional rights.

John Raeburn Green in the Virginia Law Review

Leaving to one side due process of law, and taking into account only (1) efficiency and economy in our present security system, and (2) some slight compassion for employes deeply and wantonly harased, the Administration might perhaps find it expedient to give consideration to the following suggestions, all within the framework of the present system, before more drastic changes are compelled by Congress or the courts:

Organizations on his list are not necessarily subversive.

9. The doctrine of guilt by association has been extended far beyond the authorization of Executive Order 10450. If retained at all, the doctrine should be confined to the employe's own associations and to his own membership in suspect organizations.

10. Abandon the use of charges too general to give adequate notice and opportunity to defend, which use is still opportunity to defend, which use is still deal with classified material.

It will not do to say, as it has been said, that 100 girls, using no classified material, have access to such material where they operate billing machines or typewriters in a room which also contains a locked safe containing classified material. It would be fair—and also economical—to move the safe elsewhere.

republic, at least leave the matter neutral and give common sense room in which to operate.

3. Do not suspend the employe without pay as soon as the charges are filed. If the employe deals with classified material, transfer him to other duties.

For the Defense of the Accused

4. Notify the employe when he first questioned or charged that if he unable to employ counsel, counsel for him will be appointed and paid by the Government. Do not let him proceed Government. Do not let him proceed without counsel, unless he is clearly competent to take care of himself, and wishes to do so. If an employe is not actually a security risk, it is to the Government's interest to ascertain that as quickly as possible.

5. Make a clearance by the board, which has heard the accused and his witnesses, final in the absence of the discovery of new evidence; and require such new evidence to be put in the record, and the accused heard with regard to it, if the proceeding is continued or a new proceeding later instituted.

6. Give the accused employe com-

6. Give the accused employe compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor. While the climate of opinion is now much better than it two or three years ago, or even it was two or three years ago, or even in 1954, friends and even relatives are still often afraid that they or members of their families will themselves become the subject of investigation if they tes-

7. Speed up the proceedings. Six years is too long. So is 17 months. 8. Throw out the Attorney General's list and, as well, the lists of the California Tenney Committee, the House Un-American Affairs Committee, and other lesser enthusiasts. The Attorney General has recently admitted that the activities charged against the employe. Counsel's request for particulars which, if true, would be already known to the employe, is often met with the reply that the information cannot be furnished because of security considerations. This situation is like attempting to defend against an indictment for lareeny which charges only that the accused stole—without saying what he stole, or from whom, or when, or where.

10. Abandon the use of charges too general to give adequate notice and opportunity to defend, which use is still common, and require the Government to furnish dates, names, and places for the activities charged against the emplace. Council's request for partial

Senator Hennings's Suggestion

11. If we are going to continue the shameful practice of using "faceless accusers," not subject to confrontation or cross-examination, whose accusations employe by the hearing board, although usually even the name of the accuser is not told, certainly these informers should be subjected to some interrogation and investigation before any use is made of their statements.

Senator Hennings has recently suggested that there be appointed a sufficiently large panel consisting of members of the Bar, who could get top security clearance with the right, in behalf of the accused, to cross-examine the undisclosed witnesses. This would be of great help. But it is by no means a complete substitute for confrontation and cross-examination by the accused.

12. In every case the employe or his counsel should be furnished with a copy of the transcript, and also—before the hearing—with copies of any interrogations, statements, or questionnaires previously taken from him and now relied on by the Government.

'Proceedings Bred by Fear'

These 12 suggestions are offered pri-These 12 suggestions are offered primarily in the interests of efficiency and economy. They are only a slow and halting approach to some—not all—of the guarantees of the Bill of Rights. The truth is that the problem can be diminished, but it cannot be solved, without a return to due process. Power corrupts, and power exercised in secret, not subject to public supervision and criticism, corrupts rapidly and deeply. That is what we now have, in the year 1955—the somber stain of secret denunciations and secret evidence, spreading across the Bill of Rights.

Rights.

Too often, security proceedings are bred by fear out of ignorance, with malice for midwife. But while security —assuming that the system produces that—may be important, freedom is more important.

M.D., by Henry W. Wells. (Iwayne Publishers, 125 per., $5.)

A statistical expert has said that, given enough time, a monkey could do almost anything a man can do. For example, a monkey seated at a type-writer might eventually peck out all 24 volumes of the "Encyclopedia Britannica" flawlessly by sheer accident.

Without implying that Dr. Merrill Moore has more simian qualities than the rest of us, we still see a curious likeness between a poet who writes a hundred thousand sonnets and the lower primate who gleefully tries for its hundred thousands osnnets and the lower primate who gleefully tries for its hundred thousands osnnets and the lower primate who gleefully tries for its hundred thousands osnnets of the sacrobial tries aid, than the entire output of the ages before him) and the laws of probability should have favored him with some fortunate results.

Moore seems to have learned the unrevised;

taken it."

Moore seems to have learned that mass production of verse does not assure even an occasional good poem, for his output has waned considerably. In recent years he has published books revealing a dryly satirical talent: "Clinical Sonnets," "Illegitimate Sonnets" and "Case Record From a Sonnetorium," all written out of the author's professional experiences.

experiences.

The present book deals with the two The present book deals with the two aspects of Moore as poet and psychiatrist. Though largely biographical, it includes some 200 of the sonnets with commentary by Wells. The early chapters are full of interesting digressions on John Crowe Ransom, Allen Tate and other poets of the Fugitive group to which Moore belonged. An appendix contains an article by Moore about shells, two army citations he received as a medical officer overseas, and a bibliography.

Despite the enthusiasm of such different magazines as "The Saturday Review" and "The Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease" regarding Moore as a poet, his versification remains very much as Winters described it 25 years ago. Yet his wit has sharpened and many of his later sonnets have charm and humor. Maybe after all he should not be considered a serious artist.

Answay, there is one comforting factography.

Anyway, there is one comforting fact: a monkey would be just as apt to peck out a sonnet by Shakespeare or Keats as one by Dr. Moore.

In a casual look, the snap judgment is that President Eisenhower's popularity is so high that he would be unbeatable—and this, of course, may well turn out to be the case. He still seems to sit above the battle, the smiling and beneficent dispenser of peace and prosperity, and anything a bit awry in his Administration is always blamed on lesser figures in the Republican galaxy or "team" as we are told to call it. Other Republican uncertainties include the political effect of unrest in the Farm Belt which, when it existed there in 1948, was sufficient to turn the tide to Harry Truman the tide to Harry Truman though in a close election; the political effect of the candidacy of Vice President Nixon if he is renominated; the political ef-fect of Administration leadership in the cause of anti-segre gation, already seized upon by the Vice President, upon South-ern states where Republicans polled so large a vote in 1952. With Mizell not counting. It's likely, Hutchinson and General Manager Frank Lane have indicated, that the Cardinals will carry 11 pitchers, which will leave room for 15 other players, catchers, in-fielders and outfielders. If there are two young catchers islated to do the bulk of the work a club may feel safe in carrying only those two. But in the case of the Cardinals, Walker Cooper is on the roster as catcher, pinch-hitter and coach, and it is more than likely that two receivers in addition to Cooper will be on the roster through the season.

National A.A.U. finals at Denver later this month.

At a stormy meeting of the Ozark A.A.U. committee here last night, the Soells were selected chiefly because Sponsor Bob Soell came up with the financial answer. The A.A.U. finances were in such a bad condition that the Ozark group could not afford to send a team without most of the expenses being taken care of by the team. Two other teams were represented and interested in making the trip—the Campbells and the A. & O. Collegians—and it was difficult for the committee to pick one team for a playoff without a tournament here. If successful at Wichita, the St. Louis team also would spend a full week at Denver, and again the Soells had the better opportunity for such time away from St. Louis, it was reported. Plans were discussed for a District A.A.U. tournament and teams interested were asked to contact Marv Schatzman of the Ozark committee.

St. Louis 18-6 After Squeak at Arkansas

By Robert Morrison

St. Louis University's Billikens today were celebrating another bid to the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden, which will mark their seventh appearance in the New York post-season championship in the last nine seasons.

Faculty authorities approved at mid-day a bid to the N.I.T., received yesterday even before Eddie Hickey's Billikens ended one of their better regular-season campaign with an overtime victory over Arkansas at Fayetteville, 88-86, on Jim Mc-Laughlin's outcourt shot with two seconds left. St. Louis is 18-6 for the season.

Brentwood and Maplewood Coaches Get 'Chilled' but Their Boys Pull 'Em Through

By John J. Archibald

Try to imagine how a basketball coach feels as he watches his heavily favored team build up a pleasant lead, then suddenly go so cold that it scores only four points in an entire quarter-or perhaps just one point-and before he can say see-you-lateralligator his lead has vanished,

It was happenings such as these which livened up the evenings of Coaches John evenings of Coaches Lauer and Howdy Sanders in the state tournament regional at Clayton last night, although both of their teams, Brentwood both of their teams, Brentwood and Maplewood, managed to survive with only goose pimples to remind them to remind them to remind them.

The Clayton regional was one of three that opened last night. The results went as expected in all cases and with most of the thrills confined to Clayton. In the University City meet, Ritenour swamped Wellston, 65 to 49, and U. City defeated Principia, 60 to 46, with Wilbur Marsh returning to action for the first time since fracturing a bone in his foot. Marsh scored 12 points for U. City.

didn't figure to have much trouble with Chaminade, a Catholic League team with a 13-10 record. The Eagles jumped off to a 16-8 lead, And stopped.

Chaminade had four boys with field goal ability and they started taking turns. Coach Henry Buffa's team moved to a, 16-16 tie at the end of the first quarter and scored another 16 points in the second period while Brentwood was able to make just four. Chaminade led at the half, 32-20.

Whatever Brentwood Coach Lauer told his team during the intermission, it must have been fourth and fifth of the game, and headed for the bench with six and one-half minutes left. On that second foul Pirrle sank a pair of free throws and shortly after he dropped in his tenth field goal. Maplewood, seeded first in the regional, had a lead which it never again relinquished. Pirrle finished with 30 points and Aune had 22.

Obrock and Borghoff kept it up in the final quarter as Brentwood pulled away. Obrock finished with 29 points and Borghoff 20. Bud Faron had Borghoff 20. Bud Faron had Brentwood's turn to be shocked. Howdy Sanders's Leafs started off with one of their most impressive quarters of the season and Jack Pirrie never looked better. Pirrie outscored the Ladue team in the period. 17 to 15, as he got seven field goals from varying distances and added threfree throws.

Maplewood improved on its 18-15 first quarter lead as its period on Lee of Oklahoma City and Pachin, Vincens of Kansas City. that a rout was imminent that he decided to let three of his reserves start the second half, leaving in only Pirrie and Larry Buchmiller from the first five. During the eight-minute quarter that followed Maplewood scored exactly one point.

Meanwhile, Ladue was popping in all kinds of field goals. Ross Aune, one of the league's top scorers, scored four times and Jack Wolf hit three more as the Rams pulled within two points at 46-44. As soon as the fourth quarter opened Tom Schneider tied the score with a fielder for Coach Charley Cain's in the fortieth Indianapolis 500-mile automobile race May 30.

ing, yesterday adopted a rule to prevent a stoppage of racing at tracks until a meeting has been in progress at least 14 days.

Some tracks have been hit by horsemen's strikes at the beginning of the season during the past two years, and the new rule is designed to provide a cooling off period.

The rule provides that notice of a horsemen's meeting shall be posted prior to the first day of a race meeting; that the actual horsemen's meeting shall not be held until five days later, and that no strike notice can be served until five more days have passed.

At the conclusion of that period, the horsemen may issue a 72-hour strike notice.

Horsemen racing at the track will elect a committee to represent them in negotiations with the track management.

'INJECTOR' RAZORS AND BLADES

NEW YORK, March 6 (AP)—
Aircrafts were strong today in a generally lower stock market. The market started somewhat higher, but it worked into a mixed position with the oils weak and aircraft strong and then it turned down at the finish.

Wall Street kept a wary eye on the situation in the Middle East, a major source of world oil supplies, and wondered whether developments there might be taken as a selling

Prices at the finish covered Prices at the finish covered a range of around 3 points either way with the best in the aircrafts and a few individual stocks and the worst in the oils. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 30 cents at $182.70 with the industrials unchanged, railroads off 90 cents, and the utilities up 10 cents. Yesterday's average closed at record high.

London stocks were lower again today, the Financial Times dropping 1.2 points to 170.7, a new 1955-56 low.

Times dropping 1.2 points to 170.7, a new 1935-56 low.
Volume came to an aggregate 2.770,000 shares. That compares with 3,090,000 shares traded yesterday when the market established its second straight new record high mark.
In the midst of Middle East unrest with its renewed wartalk, aircrafts advanced while oil declined—a pattern which many thought was typical of the present situation.
The steels and railroads worked lower while there was comparative steadiness or improvement in the rubbers, merchandising shares, farm implements, motion pictures, and electronics issues. The motors and chemicals were mixed. Coppers turned early firmness into a mixture of gains and losses.
Among higher stocks were Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Molecular of the present situation. General Dynamics, Alcoa, International Silver, Westinghouse Electric, American Tobacco, Pan American Airways and Paramount Pictures.

GOOD AND BAD IN PRICE SPIRAL

By Sam Dawson NEW YORK, March 6 (AP).

OSTS ARE ON THE RISE AGAIN in a number of business fields. Further hikes are shaping up by summer. Shippers will pay about $400,000,000 more a year to the railroads.

The cost of sending iron ore, coal and limestone over the Great Lakes will rise an average of 6 per cent when these waterways thaw out. And the cost of sending goods over the highways may rise if Congress goes ahead with plans to raise the tax on gasoline, diesel fuel and truck tires to pay for new highways. The price of things of steel and copper has tended higher of late, due to excess of demand over supply, as well as to labor costs. Steel workers and miners are discussing new wage demands for

SOME 2,000,000 WORKERS have just got a pay hike when the federal minimum wage rose to $1 an hour. Automatic wage increases for perhaps 2,750,000 others are in the cards this year under existing union management contracts. An example is the auto workers' annual "productivity adjustment" of 6 cents an hour. The Textile Workers Union is out to thaw a five-year wage freeze for employes in New England mills. Wage boosts were won in 1951 but later dropped when demand for textiles slumped and the owners said wages would have to be cut if the mills were to continue operating. Garment workers will seek higher pay this

ALL OF THESE recent and prospective wage increases have their bright side for the general economy as well as for the workers directly benefited. They add to the total of consumers' spending money, to the joy of merchants. But they also add to the cost of doing business for many another. When the cost can't be absorbed out of profit margins, or when it can't be offset by more output per man hour, prices go up. Consumers have noted the slow but steady upward push of the cost of many goods and services. Because food prices have tended to ease and rent has held fairly steady, the pinch hasn't been too bad. But it's there, as a check of your household budget

"PEOPLE WHO THINK the slackening in automobile output and housing construction has relieved inflationary dangers should take account of these cost-price pressures," the First National City Bank of New York says in its March bank letter. It sees a danger that wage increases "may force up costs and prices to a point where farmers and other people who do not have equivalent increases in income cannot buy." That could bring a drop in sales and in time an increase in unemployment, There is an alternative, the bank economists note. Higher prices may be "validated by inflation of demand through excessive credit expansion." The bankers take a dim view of this "choice

THE RISE IN WAGE SCALES since the war has been one of the most frequently noted phases of the economy. It has created "the new middle class"—the growing numbers of those who had had income enough to buy the autos, appliances and homes which have furnished the spectacular side of the current business boom. Labor leaders point to this as justification for the years of rising wages.

The bankers, being on the cautious side, wonder how high this can be built without danger of toppling,

Some 40,000 more Missourians filed state income tax reports in 1955 than the year before, according to T. R. Allen, income tax supervisor.

Departmental recommenda-tions for tightening the laws were provided for a special House committee, set up to make a search for all the reve-nue possible.

Representative Thomas D. Graham (Dem.), of Cole county, chairman, said his committee would seek ways to: Find defects in the tax laws and repair them, decide which taxes could be most equitably increased if additional revenue is required and find new sources of state revenue if the financial burden still exists. He said the new foundation program for public schools, approved by the voters last October 4, cannot be adequately financed until additional revenue is unearthed.

Bennett Cerf Interviews George Romney

Noted publisher, columnist and television personality gets inside story of revolutionary advance in car construction from the President of American Motors.

CERF: Mr. Romney, why do you offer a total of $25,000 insurance with each new Rambler, Nash, Hudson or Metropolitan?

ROMNEY: It backs our claim that our 'single unit" construction makes the strongest, safest, most modern cars. CERF: Is there really that much difference between yours and other cars?

ROMNEY: All the difference between yesterday's railway coach and today's streamliner. Other cars still use a principle originating with the oxcart: A flat frame bolted under a separate body. In our cars, frame and body are welded into one solid "single unit". It's the biggest stride since the all-steel body. CERF: And this makes a safer car?

ROMNEY: Twice as safe. Instead of a flat frame underfoot, our frame is actually a steel, box-girder enclosure as big as the car itself. Box-girders follow the car exterior, extend forward clear up to the top of fenders, almost out to the grille. It gives you "wrap-around" protection in front, rear, sides and top.

CERF: That sounds like real protection. ROMNEY: That's not all. Flat frames others use are stiff, so they transmit most of the force of a collision throughout the car. In "single unit" construction, the big steel box-girders up front absorb most of the impact. They take the brunt of the punishment instead of passengers.

CERF: What about performance? ROMNEY: That's a real plus. "Single unit"

construction gives a better power-weight ratio. It's stronger and safer, but eliminates useless weight and bulk. Our cars have set many racing records.

CERF: And economy?

ROMNEY: They're tops. The Rambler holds the all-time gas mileage record in the Mobilgas Economy Run. Again, that's because our "hard-muscled" single unit avoids flabby, dead weight. CERF: I like plenty of room and comfort.

ROMNEY: You can't match Nash and Hudson. They have more room inside than the highest-priced cars. And the Rambler has as much passenger space as medium-priced big cars. As for ride, the greaterstrength of our "single unit" lets us use larger springs, and much superior front suspension.

ROMNEY: You bet. Rambler has top resale value in the low price field. In addition to other advantages, with body and frame welded as a single unit, Rambler, Hudson and Nash last longer and make better used cars. There are no body-bolts, so there are practically no rattles, even when the car is old.

CERF: If all you say is true, why don't the Big Three make cars your way?

ROMNEY: That goes way back to 1940. You see, mere "bigness" can be a handicap in advanced automobile engineering. Remember, one of the biggest of the Big Three was years behind others in adopting the all-steel body. The bigger you are, the more factories you have-the more it costs to change.

CERF: I can understand that.

ROMNEY: Beginning in 1940, we spent over $50,000,000 to develop "single unit" car construction. We got the jump on the rest. Today, it will cost the biggest companies billions of dollars to re-tool and rearrange their body and assembly

CERF: Do you think they will follow you?

ROMNEY: No doubt about it. Our major competitors will probably make the change gradually - piecemeal - or one model at a time. But it will take years for them to catch up to where we are now. Frankly, we will be happy to see our "single unit" construction adopted because it will mean better, safer care on American highways.

CERF: Well, I'm about ready for another car. I'm going down to look at American Motors cars.

ROMNEY: All I ask anyone to do is see and drive our modern "single unit" care at a Nash or Hudson dealer's. I'll leave the rest up to you.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, March 6Federal income tax claims and penalties totaling $29,053 against David Fixler and Harry Inukai of St. Louis, identified as handbook operators, have been upheld by the United States Tax Court.
In an opinion written by Judge Stephen E. Rice, the court found Fixler liable for a tax deficiency and penalties of $16,253 for the years 1947 through 1949.

year 1949 were uphed by stude Rice.

In determining the alleged tax deficiency for the year 1949, the Government disallowed $90,-000 which Fixler and Inukai claimed to have paid out on winning bets that year.

Records kept by an account-ant employed by the two men showed total bets of $1,869,079 placed, with them in 1949 and total pay-outs of $1,859,105. They reported the difference, $9973, as partnership income for that year.

They reported the difference, $9973, as partnership income for that year.

The Governemnt contended that the amount paid out was only $1,769,105, a difference of $99,974. In addition, the Government said Fixler received income of $3000 in 1947 and 1948 and $3500 in 1949 which he failed to report.

In its findings of fact, the Tax Court said Fixler operated a bookmaking businessa and tobacco shop in 1947 and 1948. In 1949, the court added, Fix-ler, Inukai and William Had-zick operated the tobacco shop "and a handbook in the rear of

"and a handbook in the rear of the shop" as a partnership.
Court records gave the name of the shop as the West End Pipe Co., 5618 Delmar boulevard. A spokesman for the court said Inukai testified that he and Fixler no longer were in the bookmaking business.
"The partnership (in 1949) took bets on baseball, football and basketball, but took no bets on horse races," the court stated.

Fixler and Inukal, the court said, "maintained no books for their partnership, but employed an accountant who once a month would stop by the shop and pick up a slip of paper on which one of the partners would have written the receipts and expenses of the tobacco shop and the total take and pay-outs of the bookmaking operation for the month.

"The original betting tickets were kept for two or three weeks and then destroyed. The accountant was never furnished.

Judge Rice said Fixler and Inukai were not represented by counsel at the hearing but testified in their own behalf.

He said "the only evidence which they offered to rebut the Government's) determination which they offered to rebut the Government's) determination was their vague and self-serving testimony that the deficiencies and penalties . . . were wrong."

The judge added that Fixler and Inukai "offered no credible evidence to substantiate the claimed amount of pay-outs," Accordingly, he upheld the Government's action in disallowing ernment's action in disallowing $90,000 of the claimed pay-outs.

Are Reviewers Worth Bothering With?

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, March 6.

TODAY I fell to brooding about television in general and myself in particular. On May 6 it will be 10 full years that I have been writing about radio and television. To crib a line from Lady MacBeth:

JOHN CROSBY

thought the old man to have had so much blood in him?" Fred Allen used to say he was one of the few writers alive who had written more than he could lift. I can still lift it but I'm increasingly reluctant Are reviewers really worth bothering with? Just as an exercise in humility I eccasionally re-read a piece I wrote 20 years ago about the perspicacity - or rather lack of it-of the play reviewers.

"Who would have

In the revival of "Lord and Lady Algy," I pointed out that a New York reviewer, after dispensing hosannas to its two stars, William Faversham and Maxine Elliott, flung critical posies to seven of the eight minor players. Of the seven, not a name would be recognized today. The one he left out: Eva Le Gallienne.

I HAD A LOT OF FUN browsing through the public library files of old reviews searching for names I knew. Among other things, I stumbled on a review of "The Squab Farm" starring Alma Tell. One reviewer said: "There are several young and comely hussies among the director's troupe of cuties." Practically nobody calls Tallulah Bankhead a hussy any more—at least not in print.

In complimenting Helen Westley on her performance in "Neighbors," a critic said: "She was handicapped by the fact that the whole cast mugged and shouted what should have been scenes of quiet simplicity." Among the muggers and shouters: Katharine Cornell.

VIRTUALLY EVERYBODY connected with "Charlot's Revue of 1924," which introduced Beatrice Lillie and Gertrude Lawrence to these shores was wildly praised, including actors, authors, set designers and costume designers. Percy Hammond wrote: "Engaged in its composition were many merry Englishmen—Eric Blore and Dion Titherage, to say nothing of Roland Jeans, Ivor Novello and Philip Braham." Why Hammond felt obliged to name five of the revue's authors and not the sixth is not clear. Alexander Woollcott, in more perspicacious mood, omitted Hammond's five and concentrated entirely on the sixth:

"One exceedingly important contribution to the success of Charlot's Revue is an unsung fellow named Noel Coward. Two of the best songs—Parisian Pierrot' and There's Life in the Old Girl Yet'—are his. Coward is a young English actor who has written a number of revues in England."

Coward is a young English actor who has written a number of revues in England."

ENTHUSIASM WAS frequently divided. Reviewing the revue "Over the Top." Louis Sherman of "The Globe" didn't remember their names but he thought: "The girl, a light, spritelike creature, has really an exquisite floating style in her capers, while the young man combines eccentric agility with humor." Charles Darton in "The World," did remember their names but wasn't nearly so enthusiastic. "Fred and Adele Astaire, smacking loudly of vaudeville, were amusing."

Many actors and actresses of later renown were not only lightly brushed off but had the added humiliation of having their names misspelled. For instance, from a review of "The Wooing of Eva"; "Miss Lynn Fontanne does an amusing bit as a snuffling English girl." Miss Fontaine, Fontain and Fontainne.

None of the critics bothered to mention Jack Whiting in Cyril Maude's production of "Aren't We All?" and only one noticed a young man in the same production whose name was Leslie Howard. In "Romance and Arabella" the reviewers were too busy singing the praises of Laura Hope Crews to notice a bright young man named Alfred Lunt who was supporting her.

Each child is an individual with good points and irritating ones, strong points and weak ones in character, and that is something a mother finds very hard to smooth out. Bickering and even violent quarreling arises now and then and it takes all the resourcefulness a mother can summon to quell the disturbance. Often the conscientious mother feels guilty about the situation and blames herself for being cross or for failing in her duty. That is not good, nor is it right. What she needs is less weight on her mind and on her shoulders. How can that be accomplished?

And the mother of the family must have time out for rest and recreation away from the house and children. If she does not have that relief, she is bound to break down. She would be wise to attend to this instead of blaming herself for failure.

POSTWAR AMERICA is, as never before, a nation of travelers. Hop in the car, pack in the youngsters, turn on the radio and head for the highway—that's the pattern millions of Americans follow each weekend. And many among us have had experiences similar to the one Ted Fellowes of Greenwich, Conn., writes about.

"Not long ago, in West Virginia, we heard an announcement of a 'raising bee' for the benefit of a farmer whose barn had been struck by lightning. This interested our small fry no end and, even after I had explained that it meant that a group of townspeople would get together to finish building a barn, they were courious about the 'bee' part. Can you tell me how this came to mean a party or a group activity?"

Apparently the busyness of the ordinary honey bee as he works co-operatively with his fellow bees to fill the community hive was the inspiration for such phrases as sewing bee, husking bee, spelling bee and raising bee. This sort of social gathering where all work for a common, and ofter charitable, purpose is nothing new. WHEN a family gets ready to paint the outside of their home it usually takes about as many conferences as it does to stop a small scale war. But when they decide that they need a new roof they just order a roof and let it go at that. Now a new roof is something that you have to put up with for a good many years so your choice of materials and colors is darn important.

The three most popular types of roofing are asphalt, asbestos and wood shingles. Of the three, asbestos probably last the longest but are also the most expensive and the most difficult for the amateur to apply.

difficult for the amateur to apply.

As they weigh a good deal, the roof structure should be carefully checked to make sure it can carry the load. In most cases it can but it's best to play safe and have it checked anyway.

Asphalt shingles are probably the easiest for the amateur to apply and they are also the fastest to get on. Wood shingles aren't difficult to apply but they do take more time than the asphalt.

Back a few years no one much gave any thought to color for roofs but today it's becoming quite the thing. As far as summer comfort goes, a white roof is best because it reflects the heat from the sun and makes the house cooler. Light colored roofing is therefore better for summer comfort than black or dark colors.

Both asphalt and asbestos shingles can be had in a wide range of colors. Wood shingles can be stained many colors and if a preservative type stain is

'Silly Little Cold'

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

R ECENTLY the 75-year-old mother of a friend went south for the winter. She is a delightful woman with a fine sense of humor, equaled by a drive and self-sufficiency rarely seen in those of her age. She had previously traveled the continent with a "girl

DR. STEINCROHN Over her objections, a physician was called. X-rays showed that an entire lung was involved. She was suffering from pneumonia. There had been no symptom present that might have alerted her earlier: no cough, chest pain or fever. A logical layman's diagnosis was a "cold." After a stormy course, penicillin and other antibiotics pulled her through

HER SON said later: "It's hard to understand. There she was in a large city and in a well-managed hotel. Good doctors and good hospitals were within easy reach. And yet, without even suspecting she had more than a cold, she was slowly going out like a candle. If her friend hadn't been stubborn, my mother wouldn't have had a chance without the doctor. This near-tragedy must teach us something.

I suppose the usual lesson learned is this: When any kind of fire breaks out get help before it becomes an unmanageable conflagration.

In spite of what people have been thinking lately, this is also true of pneumonia. Since the advent of the sulfas and penicillin too many have become complacent. We think that pneumonia is "a cinch." We think that all the doctor has to say is "Nurse, the hypodermic please"-and all the nice, obedient little pneumonia germs will simply curl up and die of fright. Penicillin, we have begun to believe, is

This is dangerous thinking. It leads to procrastination. And procrastination often leads to calamity-in acute infections as well as in chronic disease.

MOST PNEUMONIA GERMS are overcome by antibiotics. Nevertheless, better remember that there are still many strains (family descendants) of the pneumococcus that are tough and obstinate. They do not become overawed and easily subjected, by a few doses of penicillin. They can still cause fatality in too many cases. Here is a specific answer to my friend about his mother's narrow escape. Namely, an apparently innocuous cold in an elderly person must be taken seriously. In the young, pneumonia infections usually shout loud warnings: chest pain, difficult breathing, high fever and cough. As you have seen in the case mentioned today, pneumonia in the elderly is often a lion dressed in sheep's clothing. If grandma or grandpa has the sniffles for a few days but feels well otherwise, I believe you can discard any suspicions of serious disease. However, if a formerly active granny takes to her bed and makes excuses that it's all because of this "silly little cold"-that's the time to be apprehensive. And that's the time to call your doctor. Penicillin usually lives up to its excellent reputation when used

By April Oursler Armstrong CHAPTER THREE

CHAPTER THREE

OW do you bring up a baby who is the Son of God?"

That was the one question that bothered Joseph and Mary most of all. When other mothers and fathers have children they know that there are rules the children must obey. But Jesus was not an ordinary child by any means, because He was the Savior of the world, and He was God.

"Should we make Him obey the same rules as everyone else?" Joseph wondered. "It is a strange thing to be the foster father of the Son of God, to have Him helpless in your arms, and watch over Him as if He were just an ordinary child."

Joseph and Mary had to decide quickly what they were ater-magnate L. Brandt are a new two-et. . . . Red But-tons is booked for the Copa if He were just an ordinary child."

Joseph and Mary had to decide quickly what they were going to do, because in the times they lived there were many rules about babies. Joseph and Mary were part of the Jewish faith, because of course there were no Christians then at all. They were good Jews, and they followed all the laws of the Temple.

One law said that when a family had its first boy-baby the mother and father must bring him to the Temple when he was exactly 40 days old. The law said that the first son of each family should be offered to God, as a sign that the family loved and honored the Lord. And the family should buy either a lamb or a pigeon as an offering in the Temple.

"He is my first-born Son," said Mary, "And He should be taken to the Temple, and offered to God."

"But He is God," said Joseph. "Can such a law be meant for Him?"

"We obey the rules, Joseph."

"We obey the rules, Joseph."
Joseph smiled. "Yes. God made the laws to show us how to live. We did not make the laws and so we cannot change them. Our job is to try to understand them, and obey them.
God knows what is best. And while we care for His Son, we must follow His laws."

And so it was that when the Baby was 40 days old, the little family set out for Jerusalem.

family set out for Jerusalem. Jesus and Mary and Joseph and Anna and Joachim left the stable under the inn and rode on donkeys up the road to Jerusalem. The air was crisp and wintry, but the sun was bright, and the world looked beautiful to the mother with her Child in her arms.

The road led up through steep elifs and ravines, and bleak brown hills. Jerusalem was on a high crest, and it shone in the sunlight like gold. The wall of the city was the color of a yellow cat, and it was made of tawny stones piled 30 feet high. In the wall were eight gates, and 60 watch towers guarded by the cruel soldiers of King Herod. But the baby Jesus and His family went in through the gate called the Sheep's Gate, and no soldier even turned to look at them. the Sheep's Gate, and no soldier even turned to look at them, they seemed so poor and Mary was walking a few steps behind Joseph, holding the sleeping Jesus in her arms. Suddenly a dark, lean shadow fell across the face of the mother and Child. From behind a long line of marble pillars an old man tottered into their path. Mary stopped still.

From all over the Temple people heard him, and gathered round. They all knew the story of Simeon's visit from the angel. They knew that he had waited in the Temple for years and years, hoping for a sight of the Savior. In silence they watched him now, He leaned forward, his face with its thousand wrinkles close to Mary.
"This Child will be the downfall of many people." he gasped, "but to many He will bring new life. He is sent for the resurrection of Israel."

He raised his bony right hand, and with his thin twisted finger he pointed crookedly at Mary's heart.

"A sword shall pierce your soul!" said Simeon huskily. "Out of many hearts thoughts shall be revealed." And then, before anyone could

And then, before anyone could speak, there came a new voice—the voice of an old, wizened, wrinkled woman, who stepped from the shadows like a spirit of the past.

"Her name is Anna, like yours," said Zachary to Mary's mother. "She is unbelievably old, even older than Simeon. For 84 years she has been a widow. She has been in the Temple since the day it was built, and she never leaves. Night and day she prays to God."

Anna stood in front of Mary, and looked down into the face of the sleeping Child. "Here, indeed, is the deliverer of the people!" she cried. "Here is the Messiah—the Savior!"

THE crowd stared at Mary and her Child, and at Anna and Simeon. And then they all turned and walked away, shaking their heads.

"Poor old Simeon," they said, "he is so old' he has lost his mind. And Anna too. Imagine thinking that tiny Baby from the country could be the Savior!"

They did not know that God can be found sometimes in the smallest things. And they did not believe that God Himself could ever be born as a baby, just to save the world.

N a vast ivory and gold palace on a hill in Jerusalem lived a king whose name was Heride. Herod was ruler of Palestine, but no one in the whole land liked him, for his heart was twisted and cruel.

Herod had everything that gold and silver could buy. He had his own musicians and dancing girls and slaves to bring him rare fruits and wine, and him rare fruits and wine, and to fan him with palm leaves. He had perfumed fountains and a silken couch, and strong white horses, and crowns of rubles. But Herod was never happy. And on this winter day his face scowled darker than the gray-clouded sky. For weeks he had been hearing strange stories about some special Baby born in Palestine, special Baby born in Palestine, and the stories worried him. He had heard that some shepherds had seen angels in the sky, and that a holy old man, and an old woman too, had cried out in the Temple that the Baby would be a Savior for the people.

"What kind of dangerous talk thick. What do they mean.

"What kind of dangerous talk is this? What do they mean, a Savior?" said Herod to himself. "Maybe they mean to make this Baby a king! But I am the King! I can't have such talk going on!"

And so Herod called his spies and told them to try to find this Baby, and learn more about Him. If there really were such a Child called the Prince of Peace, then Herod would destroy Him!

His spies came back with alarming news.

His spice and alarming news.

"Three strangers have come to Jerusalem from the East. People say they are kings in disguise. They ride camels, and men call them magi."

"What are magi?" asked Herod

"A Child who will be King?"
Herod's face purpled with Suddenly Herod stood still.

"Perhaps these wise men can

Herod dressed himself in his

The three wise men bowed names—Caspar, Melchior and Balthazar. Tall, keen-eyed they were, these Magi, and one, Herod noted, was black in color, a man from Nubia.

H EROD smiled as if nothing at all worried him. "What has brought such great peo ple as you to Palestine "We are following a star," said Caspar, the dark-skinned. "A star?" repeated Herod. "Then you have seen a star our arned men have not found.'
The wise men said nothing.

"What do you say this star reans?"
The Wise Men were very wise, indeed, because they merely shook their heads, and said they could not tell.

"We simply follow the star."
"But," persisted Herod, "what do you expect to find under this star?"

"A Child," said Balthazar,

"A Child?" Herod's voice was creamy with interest. what about this Child?"

"We cannot say till we find Him," said Melchior. "Where do you expect to find Him?" growled Herod. "Bethlehem!"

"Bethlehem. But it is only a small country place!

"Bethlehem. But it is only a small country place!"

The Wise Men shrugged. "We can only follow the star: Tonight we will go on, following it. Where it leads us, we go."

Then Herod had an idea to trap the Wise Men. "Go and find the Child," he said, "and then come back and tell me and I will go and worship Him too."

Herod sent spies to follow the Wise Men, and find the Child born under a magical star. But in the darkness Caspar, Melchoir, and Balthazar went by secret lane to Bethlehem, and the King's spies could not find them to follow them.

The Wise Men found the town and the inn, and the starled them straight to the stable. They knelt beside the manger, and their eyes were full of love and glory as they gazed upon Mary's baby, Jesus the Son of God.

And then Caspar and Mel.

God.

And then Caspar and Melchior and Balthazar each left a gift by the manger, and went out again into the night. They planned to go the next day to tell King Herod they had found the Baby. But while they slept they dreamed, all of them the same dream warning them not same dream warning them not same dream, warning them not to go to Herod, but to go straight to their own country by a different road. Because of that dream they rose in the middle of the night and mounted their camels and rode away Herod would never learn from them where Jesus was!

That same night Joseph had a dream, even more strange. An angel came to him and said: "Get up and take the Child and His mother and go quickly into Egypt, and stay until I tell you. Because Herod is looking

"Joseph, I could not sleep.
And so I unpacked the gifts the Wise Men left for the child. Do you know what they brought?"

Joseph shook his head. "I am too worried now, Joachim."

"Look." said Joachim. "Here is frankincense—the most perfect perfume of all. And myrrh, the fragrant spice. And here—here is gold!"

"Gold?" Joseph leaned closer

"Gold?" Joseph leaned closer to see. "Joachim, it is as if God knew we would need it, and sent it so we could do what His angel said! Gold for our trip. Listen, Joachim—" And Joseph told the older man of his dream. In the blackness of night Jotold the older man of his dream. In the blackness of night Joseph woke Mary. They said fond goodbys to Anna and Joachim. Then Joseph put Mary and her Baby on the donkey's back, and tied the bundles of their clothes and goods to the saddle. Staff in one hand, Joseph took the donkey reins with the other, and in the middle of the dark the family started out from Bethlehem. They were taking the road to Egypt.

When King Herod heard that the Wise Men had disappeared without telling him where the Baby was, he screamed with anger.

"I will find that Child no.

Baby was, he screamed with anger.
"I will find that Child—no matter what I must do. I must get rid of Him, that upstart babe with His angels and His stars!"

And then a horrible idea came to Herod, an idea so terrifying that even he grew pale at the thought. He knew the child was supposed to be in Bethlehem. And the idea came to this cruel monster of a king that if he killed all the bables in Bethlehem, would be safe from lehem he would be safe from the Child who was the Prince Herod's soldiers went to Bethlehem with swords and spears, and by his orders they killed every boy baby in town. Not one of those holy innocents was

But Herod could not hurt the infant Jesus.

For God had warned Joseph, and Joseph had done just as the angel had said. The holy family was safely on the long road into Egypt.

most of the countryside was still under considerable snow.
My daughter, her husband and son, Johnny, who is 17, met me at the train before 8 o'clock and we drove Johnny to school. Then we went back to my daughter's apartment for breakfast.

AFTER THAT, we drove out into the country south of Syracuse—beautiful rolling country—to look at the 200 acres of farm land and the old farmhouse which my daughter and her husband bought. The farm has great possibilities, I think. The previous owners of the property, who are moving out were more than kind and let us go over the whole house and offered us a nice hot cup of coffee and cookies, which we all enjoyed.

ON THE TRIP to Syracuse I read a tribute paid to Myron C. Taylor on his retirement as a director and member of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation. It is an extraordinary record of a business career, always lived with integrity and high purpose and as a real humanitarian. Taylor is 82 years old and this record must make him and his friends extremely proud.

I also had a chance to glance through a little book published by the Oxford University Press called "In Praise of Oxford," by Lord Horder, and I feel sure that anyone who has an affection for that university would enjoy having this small book.

From what I have seen of the wives, a mother's worry is increased 10-fold for her son when he marries. I know there are some pos-sessive mothers but this could be handled without hurting their feelings and making them feel they are not needed. Since you have

THIS CURRENT STORM of mothers-in-law and daugh ters-in-law has prompted me to add a few cents worth. Isn't a son's choice in reality his mother's? Did she not herself make it in those years of molding, shaping him into what she someday hoped he would be? Is not his very being, his character, understanding, foresight hers? Yes, and mostly is not she the very one who dared to place the dream of a wife someday within his heart? Did she not travel this road first? Does she not remember how she wished for understanding and love when she was first a daughter-in-law? Is it not for us who go first and lead the to weed out the seedlings of jealousy and sarcasm and criticism, hatred and misunderstanding?

The suggestion makes sense from two angles.

The young mother needs help when she is ill, when she wants to get away from home for an afternoon or evening, or when she has a chance to take a little trip

Also the older woman needs to feel needed and useful And often she needs to earn a little money, too. One woman I know who is past 70 has found that baby-sitting with neighbors' children has given her a real place in her community. The young parents whose children she cares for have become friends. Her help is so much appreciated that these young mothers try to outdo each other in "looking after the neighbor who symbolizes their freedom. They take her marketing when they go, get their husbands to do chores for her, invite her to their morning coffees, bring her gifts at Christmas, etc. She is important in their lives and they try hard to show her she is appreciated.

She is a sensible woman and so she knows that babysitting for young couples for pay is every bit as important as any kind of unpaid community work she could do.

OU wouldn't believe there

Could be a longtime argument about such a simple dish as macaroni and cheese. But there can be. Each of the four of us at a Scrabble table agreed only on one thing—we all love it.

One of us didn't even use macaroni. She likes spaghetti better, but her husband insists on calling it macaroni. It has a sort of custard base as both eggs and milk are used. By the way, she often uses liquefied instant dry milk. With a growing boy in the family she never seems to have enough bottles or cartons of fresh milk left in the refrigerator.

ONE OF THE OTHERS who

ONE OF THE OTHERS who uses the regular macaroni likes to alternate cooked macaroni with plenty of sliced cheese and cover this with milk. It is then baked until slightly browned on the top. The success depends upon the use of plenty of cheese, and this should be sharp.

I confessed my preference for a simple, old-fashioned home recipe for which there were no exact ingredients. The cooked macaroni, grated cheese and canned tomatoes, mixed with plenty of salt, some sugar and a dash each of cloves and nutmeg are alternated in the caserole. This is baked at rather a high temperature, as the top must be crisp.

ANY ONE of these recipes will supply the main dish for a Lenten meal and will be thoroughly enjoyed with a mixed green salad, hot rolls or corn sticks.

Perhaps you may like to try each of them (one at a time). Spaghetti Casserole Supreme.

The weather was cold. We kept reading about it in headlines and in letters from home. "How you must be suffering," we would quote the letters laughingly, as we sat in comfortable restaurants, drinking hot coffee and eating whipped cream delicacies. But aside from occasional long rides in unheated cars, or the impressive 39 inches of snow at Berchtesgaden, the weather was secondary. Your Food Problems Teen-Age ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Tues., March 6, 1956 5D Test for The Adults

> By Frances Ilg, M.D. and Louise Ames, Ph.D.

TODAY we have a quiz for you, this time checking on your attitude toward your teen-age girls and boys.

Do you feel that teen-agers are a strange and difficult spe-cies of human being, quite dif-ferent from anything you have known before?

Do you frequently talk in an adverse way to your friends about "these awful teen-agers"?

Do you feel that there has been a tremendous change for the worse in teen-agers since you yourself were in that age

Are you interested in your daughter's dating problems, or do you feel that it is just ridiculous for her to be so boy-crazy?

DO YOU FEEL angry and resentful when your adolescent son or daughter makes critical beaten; one and one-half cups liquefied instant non-fat milk, two teaspoons worcestershire sauce, canned tomatoes, one-half cups apoon sauce, one-half pound American cheese, shredded; one 8-ounce the sauce, thin spaghettl, cooked. remarks about your appearance, ideas, or ways of doing things?

his friends rather than with his

package, rinse, drain, and arrange in greased two-quart casserole. Melt butter or bacon fat in frying pan, add onion family?

If, as is apt to happen, your 11 to 13-year-old behaves in an uneven way, very grownup one minute, babyish and dependent the next, what do you do? Do you belittle his independence and then make fun of his baby-ishness? (Or do you try to be flexible and give him help when he needs it—to allow him freedom and independence, within reason, when he wishes for that?) and green pepper, and cook one minute. Add tomatoes, salt and pepper, adding more salt if necessary, and pour over macaroni. Cover with sliced cheese. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 de-grees) about 20 minutes, until cheese melts and bubbles. Yield: cheese melts and bubbles. Yield:
Six liberal servings.
Note: If desired, two cups well-seasoned tomato soup may be substituted for the canned tomatoes and seasonings. Salad oil may replace the butter or bacon fat.

WHEN YOUR 13-year-old withdraws a little, as he may, from the family group, do you resist this and insist that he spend as much time as ever with the family?

Choose Hanging Shelves By Elizabeth Hillyer

T'S not enough to keep three anything that will decorate a Style, color, and interesting good looks don't settle carefully considered too. And this important fourth point must count as much for hanging shelves as for pictures and mirrors.

It may be easier to tell that a picture or mirror is the wrong size because a hanging shelf unit seems to be a sum total of interesting parts. But no maiter how pleasing the shape of the unit or what fascinating objects it holds, it must be as well proportioned to the furniture below it. And this means it must be large enough—so many are too small. Skimpy over-all dimensions mean skimpy decoration—the effect is of an after-thought or a stab at decorating rather than of the idea-full and eye-catching addition to the room hanging shelves can be.

Do you feel that all these adolescent changes—demanding extra freedom, being more independent, and expressing more criticism of you, their parents—are all to the bad? Do you bemoan the passing of the good old days when your child was docile and admiring?

mergau, Heidelberg, Frankturt. What impressions did we have, we 30-day wonders? One day when Roy Smith was outlining three sermons he intended to deliver, we found we all had made the same divisions in our summaries. First, we had noted "The Great Wonder," West Germany's economic recovery. Second, "The Great Despair," the lack of hope for reunification, the tension with Russia, the problem of East zone refugees who come to the West at an average of 500 a day. Third, "The Great Struggle," the effort of the churches to bring new meaning into the materialistic lives of the people. -Popular Recordings-

Movie Music

By Charles Menees

USIC from movie soundtracks has received increasing attention from recording companies in the long-play era.

The collections that have fared the best with the public, of course, are those with an individual song or two that have achieved wide popularity in their own right. Those consid-ered the biggest gambles are original background scores, in-strumental music written to fit mood and action of a film. How many viewers of the picture "The Egyptian" were so impressed with the music that they rushed to buy the recording of it? It was a better than average score, yet the answer is probably comparatively few compared, say, with those who have already acquired the soundtrack music of the recent

"Oklahoma!" and "Carousel." A new entry as a bidder for favor from record buyers is the Elmer Bernstein music for "The Man With the Golden Arm" (Decca, 12-inch LP). It is a combination of jazz and symphony type music, which in a way gives it a double approach. However, one feels that the widest appeal is in the modern jazz descriptions which are played by such idols of the cult as trumpeters Shorty Rogers and Pete Candoli, Drummer Shelly Manne, Trombonist Milt Bernhart and others to whom the Kentop-like passages are certainly no mystery. The symphonic passages are interesting and well played by competent performers who, except for Pianist Ray Turner, are just names to the general public. The contrasting tautness and tenderness, the frustration and the happy resolution of the film story are well matched by Bernstein, who conducts the orchestra also.

WHILE ON MOVIE MUSIC, two other items are worthy of mention-"Great Love Themes From Motion Pictures" by Max Steiner (Victor) and "Love Music From Hollywood" by Paul Weston (Columbia). Steiner, for years a composer of film music, conducts an orchestra through his own works dating back to "Out of the Blue" from the Dolores del Rio film "Bird of Paradise" of 1932. There are title themes from such pictures as "A Star Is Born," "Dark Victory" and "Johnny Belinda," and individual songs such as "As Long As I Love" from "Saratoga Trunk" and "Consuela" from "The Last Command." Weston, in his typical lush style, offers such title songs as "My Foolish Heart," "Ramona," "Laura," and extracts from the scores of "Odd Man Out," "Lost Horizon" and "King's Row."

LP POTPOURRI: Nat Cole has Nelson Riddle accompaniment for 16 songs in "The Piano Style of Nat (King) Cole" (Capitol). The soloist's most interesting work is in the selections played at quick tempo. . . . Dick Hyman has Drummer Don Lamond and Bassist Eddle Safranski alongside as he plays, at times amazingly, piano on one side, organ on the other of "The Dick Hyman Trio Swings" (M-G-M). . . . The Lawson-Haggart Jazz Band adds four selections to the eight previously heard on a 10-inch release called "King Oliver's Jazz" (Decca, 12-inch). New are "Deep Henderson," Blues" and "Doctor Jazz." . . . Reissues also form the backbone of Decca's "Trumpet Moods" by Trumpeter Randy Brooks's orchestra. The still-wonderful trumpet solo of "Tenderly" is the first band of one side. . . . For four-beat jazz the Rampart Street Paraders do some distinguished solo and ensemble playing on "Dixieland, My Dixieland" (Columbia), "After You've Gone," "My Monday Date," "Chinatown" and "Sleepy Time Down South' are among the eight tunes given longer arrangements than usual. This is an all-star group made up of such nowbased-in-Hollywood jazz men as Matty Matlock, Eddie Miller and Nick Fatool.

THIS IS THE DIFFERENCE!

Rare mountain coffee puts the distinctive flavor in Folger's... a flavor you'll find unusually rich and tangy... never flat or bitter

High in remote mountain regions where there is an abundance of fertile volcanic soil and warm tropic rain, nature grows a rare type of coffee.

This Mountain-Grown coffee-which experts agree has the rarest tang and the most satisfying flavor of any coffee known today, is the difference you taste in Folger's. This naturally more flavorful coffee is specially selected and blended in the unique Folger way.

This is what gives Folger's Coffee its rare fragrance, clear amber color and refreshingly different flavor-free from any trace of bitterness-a flavor that has never been duplicated by any other coffee.

Discover for yourself the wonderful truth about this rare Mountain-Grown coffee and its distinctive flavor. Your grocer has Folger's in 1 and 2-pound tins; Regular, Drip and Fine Grinds.

KATHARINE CORNELL has been signed by NBC-TV for her television debut April 2 in "Producers' Show-Pinkham, an NBC vice pres-case" produc-tion of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." This famous Ru-dolf Besier play has been with Miss Cornell than any other.

She first appeared on the New York stage 25 years ago—in February 1931. As has usually been the case in her career, her director for the television production will be her producer-director husband, Guthrie McClintic.
The "Dinah Shore Show" on KSD-TV at 6:30 this evening will be in color.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

THE names of our days go back to ancient times, but the Norsemen and other Germanic tribes made changes. The Romans conquered some Germanic tribes, and spread the name of the days of the week.

Tribesmen later captured Rome, but the city rose again as a center of religion. The Christian faith was spread to western and northern Europe.

Q. What did the Romans call Tuesday?

wolf snapped the links apart.
"The same thing happened to a stronger iron chain, and then the gods asked certain elves to make a cord which would hold Fenrer tightly. This was produced from several things, including 'the root of a plant, the sinews of a bear, the breath of a fish and the footfall of a cati' "Sly Fenrer refused, at first, to be bound, but then said, 'I will let you bind me if one of section of your scrapbook. Q. Were special stories told about Tiw or Tyr?

A. He was the center of a few stories. Chief among them was this Norse tale:

"Fenrer, a terrible wolf, lived in Asgard, the home of the gods. It grew large and a heavy chain was placed around it, but the wolf snapped the links apart.

"The same thing happened to the gods."
